4 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
5 DISTRICT OF NEVADA

6 JOSE AGUILAR,

Case No. 3:16-CV-0529-MMD-CBC

7 Plaintiff,

ORDER

8 v.

9 MICHAEL B. KOEHN, et al.,

10 Defendants.
11 _____/

12 Before the court is defendants' motion for leave to file medical records under seal in 13 support of defendants' response to motion for preliminary injunction. (ECF No. 43).

14 "Historically, courts have recognized a general right to inspect and copy public records and 15 documents, including judicial records and documents." See Kamakana v. City and County of 16 Honolulu, 447 F.3d 1172, 1178 (9th Cir. 2006) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).
17 "'Throughout our history, the open courtroom has been a fundamental feature of the American 18 judicial system. Basic principles have emerged to guide judicial discretion respecting public access 19 to judicial proceedings. These principles apply as well to the determination of whether to permit 20 access to information contained in court documents because court records often provide important, 21 sometimes the only, bases or explanations for a court's decision.'" Oliner v. Kontrabecki, 745 F.3d 22 1024, 1025 (9th Cir. 2014) (quoting Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. v. F.T.C., 710 F.2d 1165, 23 1177 (6th Cir. 1983)).

24 Documents that have been traditionally kept secret, including grand jury transcripts and 25 warrant materials in a pre-indictment investigation, come within an exception to the general right 26 of public access. See Kamakana, 447 F.3d at 1178. Otherwise, "a strong presumption in favor of 27 access is the starting point." Id. (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). "The presumption 28 of access is 'based on the need for federal courts, although independent—indeed, particularly

1 because they are independent—to have a measure of accountability and for the public to have 2 confidence in the administration of justice.” Center for Auto Safety v. Chrysler Group, LLC, 809
3 F.3d 1092, 1096 (9th Cir. 2016), cert. denied, 137 S.Ct. 38 (Oct. 3, 2016) (quoting United States
4 v. Amodeo (Amodeo II), 71 F.3d 1044, 1048 (2nd Cir. 1995); Valley Broad Co. v. U.S. Dist. Court-
5 D. Nev., 798 F.2d 1289, 1294 (9th Cir. 1986)).

6 There are two possible standards a party must address when it seeks to file a document
7 under seal: the compelling reasons standard or the good cause standard. See Center for Auto Safety, 8 809 F.3d at 1096-97. Under the compelling reasons standard, “a court may seal records only when 9 it finds ‘a compelling reason and articulate[s] the factual basis for its ruling, without relying on 10 hypothesis or conjecture.” Id. (quoting Kamakana, 447 F.3d at 1179). “The court must then 11 ‘conscientiously balance[] the competing interests of the public and the party who seeks to keep 12 certain judicial records secret.” Id. “What constitutes a ‘compelling reason’ is ‘best left to the 13 sound discretion of the trial court.”” Id. (quoting Nixon v. Warner Comm., Inc., 435 U.S. 589, 599 14 (1978)). “Examples include when a court record might be used to ‘gratify private spite or promote 15 public scandal,’ to circulate ‘libelous’ statements, or ‘as sources of business information that might 16 harm a litigant’s competitive standing.”” Id. (quoting Nixon, 435 U.S. at 598-99).

17 Center for Auto Safety described the good cause standard, on the other hand, as the 18 exception to public access that had been applied to “sealed materials attached to a discovery motion 19 unrelated to the merits of a case.” Id. (citing Phillips ex rel. Estates of Byrd v. Gen. Motors Corp., 20 307 F.3d 1206, 1213-14 (9th Cir. 2002)). “The ‘good cause language comes from Rule 26(c)(1), 21 which governs the issuance of protective orders in the discovery process: ‘The court may, for good 22 cause, issue an order to protect a party or person from annoyance, embarrassment, oppression, or 23 undue burden or expense.”” Id. (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c)).

24 The Ninth Circuit has clarified that the key in determining which standard to apply in 25 assessing a motion for leave to file a document under seal is whether the documents proposed for 26 sealing accompany a motion that is “more than tangentially related to the merits of a case.” Center
27 for Auto Safety, 809 F.3d at 1101. If that is the case, the compelling reasons standard is applied. If 28 not, the good cause standard is applied.

1 Here, defendants seek to file exhibits under seal in connection with motion for summary
2 judgment (ECF No. 42) which is unquestionably “more than tangentially related to the merits of a 3 case.” Therefore, the compelling reasons standard applies.

4 This court, and others within the Ninth Circuit, have recognized that the need to protect 5 medical privacy qualifies as a “compelling reason” for sealing records. See, e.g., San Ramon
6 Regional Med. Ctr., Inc. v. Principal Life Ins. Co., 2011 WL89931, at *n.1 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 10, 7 2011); Abbey v. Hawaii Employers Mut. Ins. Co., 2010 WL4715793, at * 1-2 (D. HI. Nov. 15,
8 2010); G. v. Hawaii, 2010 WL 267483, at *1-2 (D.HI. June 25, 2010); Wilkins v. Ahern, 2010
9 WL3755654 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 24, 2010); Lombardi v. TriWest Healthcare Alliance Corp., 2009
10 WL 1212170, at * 1 (D.Ariz. May 4, 2009). This is because a person’s medical records contain 11 sensitive and private information about their health. While a plaintiff puts certain aspects of his 12 medical condition at issue when he files an action alleging deliberate indifference to a serious 13 medical need under the Eighth Amendment, that does not mean that the entirety of his medical 14 records filed in connection with a motion (which frequently contain records that pertain to 15 unrelated medical information) need be unnecessarily broadcast to the public. In other words, the 16 plaintiff’s interest in keeping his sensitive health information confidential outweighs the public’s 17 need for direct access to the medical records.

18 Here, the referenced exhibits contain plaintiff’s sensitive health information, medical 19 history, and treatment records. Balancing the need for the public’s access to information regarding 20 plaintiff’s medical history, treatment, and condition against the need to maintain the confidentiality
21 of plaintiff’s medical records weighs in favor of sealing these exhibits. Therefore, defendants’ 22 motion to seal (ECF No. 43) is GRANTED.
